

Three highlights of the semester VT22

LundaEkonomerna works tirelessly to improve your university experience. That includes sittings, career events but most importantly education surveillance. We work day and night to represent your opinions towards the school and here are three highlights from the previous semester. Enjoy!

Revision of the Bachelors in Business and Economics

Revamp the old flagship.

There is a huge overhaul of the education portfolio at LUSEM and first out is the bachelor's program in Business and Economics. The program has faced a dwindling search pressure during the last couple of years and it has lost some international rankings. After pressure from LundaEkonomerna, the school has decided to do a large revision of most programs and start with the largest bachelors program. During spring the first step was completed with identifying strengths, weaknesses and how we compare to other programs around Sweden and the world.

Anti-discriminations guide for students

On the road to a more welcoming school.

The committee for equality and diversity have during the year worked on a anti-discrimination guide for students and this spring the official release was held. The guide aims to help students what discrimination is and where they can get help if you feel like you have been discriminated against, harrasset or been treated unfairly. This is the first step in trying to create a more inclusive and welcoming environment at LUSEM and LundaEkonomerna has been a driving factor in creating this forum and guide.

LUSEM learning forum

Higher pedagogical quality in our teachers and courses.

A new initiative has been started to increase the pedagogical skills of the teachers and improve the pedagogical quality of the courses and programs at LUSEM. Several different ideas have been discussed already like focus group workshops, pedagogical academia and continuous pedagogical courses for all teachers. This will increase the quality of our education immensely with a large opportunity for us students to form the future of our education. We can probably expect some revolutionary new concepts in the future.
